Taft and His Religion.

It is being urged by the Republican press that the religion, or rather the lack of the belief in religion that is held by the majority of the American people, should not be urged against Mr. Taft.
They contend that the Constitution of the United States does not prescribe any religious tests or require any religious belief on the part of any one. That is true.
But America is a Christian nation.
Upon it is fixed the eyes of the world and on its course, in a measure, depends largely the extension of the religion of Christ.

While a religious test may not be required of a people or their governors, history is replete with the failure of nations that have departed from Christianity, or that have refused to accept the same.
Shortly after the French revolution that country by general law abolished the Sabbath, and in its stead ordained every tenth day as a day of rest. The government attacked the priesthood and the ministry and sought to establish a purely materialistic government.
What has been the result for France? It has resulted in so deplorable a state of both public and private morals that the country is doomed unless it returns to the same and natural code. The doing away with the religious restraint in the homes has led to a state of morals in which civil marriages are held lightly, divorce is common and the sanctity of the marriage tie is almost unknown.
Only one result could happen.
The death rate is far in excess of the birth rate, so much that the government in its alarm has sought to encourage fruitful marriages by offering prizes and premiums on children born in wedlock. The departure from the teaching of the Christian code has caused it.

Upon the other hand, Japan,
now one of the great nations, was a nation but little regarded until it established some years ago by imperial edict that the Christian religion should be the religion of the country. Since that time the country has grown and blossomed as a rose. History is replete with these instances, and neither man nor nation that denies Christ
can prosper.

Taft is a Unitarian. The definition of Unitarian is, according to the dictionaries: "UNITARIAN:
—One who denies the doctrine of the Trinity, believing that God exists only in one person." Denying the Trinity he denies the existence of Christ. He denies that Christ was conceived of God or that he is the Savior of mankind.
That church, if it should be called a church, believes that Christ was simply a man, not even the son of Joseph, but an illegitimate child of Mary. A man holding that belief might be a moral man—Ingersoll did not drink, swear, smoke, chew or have any of the common vices, but he did incalculable harm to the country. Taft may be a moral man, but he denies the De-vinity of the Savior of man.

Both protestants and Catholics spend millions annually to spread the Christian religion to the lands of the unenlightened. These people whom we designate as heathen are not fools or idiots. The lack of morality and the failure of some of the people who profess the religion of Christ has been one of the drawbacks to our missionaries,
as the "heathen" frequently says
to them: "If your people believe in the teaching of Christ why do not all of you practice His teachings?" Would not these same people say to our missionaries, if Taft were elected: "Why come over here to teach us the religion of your Christ and then elect a President of your own Christian nation who rejects your Christ and who refuses to believe in Him?" The election of Taft would we believe, do more to hurt the cause of religion and to prevent the spread of Christianity than all the Paines, Voltaries, Darwins,

Huxleys, Tindalls, Hs, and all the open enemies of Christianity have ever been able to do.

And when Mr. Langley, the Republican nominee for Congress, Mr. Adams, the Republican candidate for Circuit Judge, and Mr.
Kash, the Republican candidate
for Commonwealth's Attorney,
come to you for your support, ask them if they endorse the candidacy of a man who repudiates the Savior of the world. Ask them if they are going to vote for the man who openly denies Christ. The Republican party is responsible for this. There are thousands of good men in the Republican party who do believe in Christ and the fact that Mr. Taft was an unbe-liever was known to the Republicans before his nomination. Hence the query naturally arises, is the Republican party a party that endorses religion, or is it a party that repudiates all the sacred traditions and beliefs of the people who have a hope for a life beyond
the grave?

If you vote for a godless party
what will you stand for that days work be? X X X

Hazel Green, Wolfe Co.

Hon. J. B. White, of Irvine, Democratic candidate for circuit judge; Hon. A. H. Stamper, of Campton, Democratic candidate
for Commonwealth's Attorney,
and Hon. S. G. Sample, of Campton, candidate for county attorney of Wolfe county, were here last week shaking hands with their many friends and looking after their political affairs. R. J. Mc-Lin and family, who have been attending the bedside of his father in Virginia for about two weeks, returned Saturday. Last Saturday, the day of the dedication,
was a day of pride for the Hazel
Green Academy. The said president, Mrs. Atwater, was present and gave a short talk; also Mrs. A. M. Harrison, of Lexington, and the Misses Ford were present. Carl Quicksall, a student, gave a very interesting lecture, after which the exercises were closed by prayer. Then all marched in a promenade over the swinging bridge to the boys' dormitory and Helen E. Moses Memorial, thence to the Industrial Building where all adjourned.
The exercises were under the management of Prof. Henry Der-thick. DIDE HEMLOCK.

and others. It is also expected that a series of meetings will be conducted in the neighborhood
during the week. The Christian Temperance Aid at Crockettsville desire and request that all Christian readers of The Breathitt County News when assembled at their places of worship that they join in the following prayer:
"Almighty God, who dost inhabit eternity, while we appear but for a little moment and then vanish
away, we adore Thy eternal name, though Thou hold the destiny of all things, we deeply implore an administration of Thy power for relief from the sale of liquor,
sold and distributed to the people;
Almighty and Eternal God, it is in Thee only do we trust, and Thou alone can take away the sale of whiskeys from our midst; Divine Father, our laws have failed, but Thy powers will not; unto Thee do we submit our future
and the future of our children, believing that Thou will make use of such means as will relieve us of this curse and save us. We ask all through Christ. Amen."
William Belcher, of Shoulder
Blade, and Jackson Little, of El-

COPYRIGHT, 1907 BY
GEORGE H. BROADHURST

Alwyn Bennett at first glance had little to distinguish him from the average good looking young man about town. But a closer observer would have noticed a firmness about the shapely mouth, an honesty and strength of purpose about the eyes, a general air of latent power that lay unawakened beneath the jolly, purposeless exterior. No crisis had yet called forth any special manifestation of this power, and meanwhile Bennett was content to loaf through an existence that thus far had been decidedly pleasant. The only son of a widowed mother who advised and spoiled him, more than comfortably well off from the great fortune amassed by his dead father, possessed of a social position unassailable and equally fortunate in that mysterious quality that spells popularity—all these gifts had saved Alwyn Bennett the trouble of fighting life's battle or showing who might be within his reach.

"Good old Bennett!" hailed Perry. "We were just talking about you."

Dallas Wainwright.

"Good!" answered Alwyn. "Anything is better than indifference. What were you saying about me?"
"You tell him, Dallas!" grinned the boy.

"Be quiet!" whispered his sister, flushing with vexation.
"Then I'll tell for myself," went on Perry gleefully. "I was just asking her—"

Seeing the girl's confusion, Bennett quickly changed the subject by inter-rupting:

"My mother will be over here in a few minutes, Dallas. She is bringing along a guest of ours, who says you and she were chums at school—Miss Garrison."

"Cynthia Garrison! Oh, I'll be ever so glad to see her again!"
"I know who she is!" cried Perry, refusing to be snubbed. "They say she's a gorgeous looker. When her cousin was under the hammer, I bought in her two pet Boston terriers, Betty and Prince. Maybe that won't make me solid with her, eh? Well, I guess. All I ask is a start, and you'll find a whole lot of cripples slower than I'll be. If they're walking over I might wander out, sort of aimless-like and happen to meet 'em. Maybe that's a bum idea? Good old me!"

Full of his Machiavellian scheme, the lad booted through the long window and was gone.
"Dallas," began Bennett, without preamble, "you must surely know why I'm here today. You've seen that paragraph in the—"

"I have seen it," she answered quietly.

Taken aback by her manner, Bennett hesitated an instant; then asked nervously:

"The rumor isn't true, Dallas? Tell me it isn't!"

"Why shouldn't it be true?" she countered, as though not wholly sorry to witness the new look her words called to his face. The look deepened as Bennett continued:

"You don't love Gibbs? Surely you don't love him?"

"I—"

The French windows swung wide, breaking off her reply.

CHAPTER II.

ALWYN BENNETT turned sharply toward the window, angry at the interruption, but Perry Wainwright, ushering two ladies in from the veranda, met his scowl with a wink of triumph.

"Not so bad, eh?" called the boy. "Met them as they were turning into the drive. You see?"

"Oh," observed the younger of the two women—a pretty, flower faced girl who since her entrance into the room had been engaged in exchanging delighted greetings with Dallas. "So you came to meet us? You said you just happened—"

"Did I?" asked Perry in deep amazement. "Well, well! The fact is, I wanted to do something startling in honor of meeting you, so I told my first lie. I—"

"Don't mind him, Cynthia!" laughed Dallas. "He's taken that way quite often."

"Oh, it's his usual pace, then?" queried Miss Garrison innocently. "I thought perhaps he was just warning up."

"And now," pursued Dallas, taking possession of Cynthia, much to Perry's disgust, "tell me all about yourself. Have?"

"There isn't much to tell. But there's going to be. I'm going to work."

"Work? What for?"

"For a living, of course."

"Not really?"

"Yes, isn't it ridiculous?" broke in Mrs. Bennett, a sweet little old lady who now found her first chance to edge in a word amid the general vol-ley of talk. "But Cynthia is set on doing it."

"Why shouldn't I? I haven't a dollar, and there's a theory that one must live."

"But what are you going to do?" asked Dallas.

"I don't know. I have a pretty good education. I shall find something. I—Dallas, I think your brother is giving us a high sign of some sort."

"I am!" declared Perry. "I just wanted to tell you there's a surprise waiting for you. Two surprises in one kennel. Want to see 'em?"

"What is he talking about?" queried Cynthia, appealing to Dallas for light on the mystery.

"About Betty and Prince Charlie," retorted Perry. "Your two Boston terriers that I bought. Want to see 'em?"

"Oh, the darlings! Of course I do. Where are they?"

"Come along and I'll show you. The darlings, eh? Talk like that makes me wish I was a dog."

"Don't despair," suggested Cynthia. "Maybe you'll grow."

Still puzzling vaguely as to the meaning of this cryptic utterance, Perry followed Miss Garrison from the room, a grin of satisfied ambition wreathing his tanned face.

"To think of poor little Cynthia having to go to work!" sighed Dallas, looking after them. "One would as soon think of putting a butterfly into harness. Is it true she has no money left?"

"I'm afraid it's only too true," answered Mrs. Bennett. "Her father lost everything in speculating. He was cashier of the Israel Putnam Trust company and afterward president of it."

She paused as the office door opened and Thompson, the secretary, came into the room. At sight of Mrs. Bennett he seemed about to turn back; but, changing his purpose, crossed to the table and began to look for some documents he had failed to gather up.

"What was the rest of the story about Mr. Garrison?" asked Dallas, really interested in the older woman's recital.

Thompson's papers slipped through his fingers and went skidding across the polished floor. The others looked around in surprise.

"Excuse me!" muttered the secretary as he stooped to gather up the documents. "Very awkward! I'm sorry."

He went on arranging the scattered papers in his usual unobtrusive silence, effacing himself from the general talk.

"You were telling me about Cynthia's father," said Dallas.

"Oh, yes," said Mrs. Bennett, taking up the thread of her tale. "He was looked on as one of the most honorable bankers in the city. And so he was until his misfortune."

"Misfortune?"

"More misfortune than crime. His wife was a girlhood friend of mine, so perhaps I am prejudiced in his favor. A famous financier—a dear friend of his—induced him to make a very large loan that proved to be a mistake. He went to the financier for advice as to how to recoup the loss. The financier told him of an investment by which he could get all the money back without any risk and could make good the loan. Mr. Garrison took his advice, used the bank's funds for the purpose and—the investment proved worthless. The bank was insolvent. Mr. Garrison shot himself."

"Horrible! Horrible!" murmured Dallas.

"The horrible part of the whole story came out later," said Alwyn Bennett. "It seems the financier had deliberately ruined Mr. Garrison and was on the other side of the deal by which the bank's funds were lost. In other words, he persuaded his friend to put money in what he knew was a losing venture, then took that money himself."

"He did it willfully," chimed in Mrs. Bennett. "Knowing his friend would be ruined and that the bank's money which he lured Mr. Garrison into investing was going to swell his own ill gotten fortune."

"I did not think any one lived who could do such things," shuddered Dallas. "Poor Cynthia!"

"Cynthia suffered least of all," said Mrs. Bennett. "She was little more than a child at the time. Her mother died of grief, and her brother—a promising, clever young fellow just entering college—disappeared."

"Deserted Cynthia?"

"Not so bad as that. He probably went away sooner than face his father's disgrace and began life somewhere far from home. That was nine years ago, yet ever since then he sends Cynthia a little money every month—not much, but no doubt all he can scrape together above his bare living expenses. She has tried in every way to get in touch with him, but she can't locate him anywhere. There is no clew except that monthly money order I never knew him very well—in fact, I only saw him once or twice—but I've heard he was a fine, manly boy. The shock must have been worst of all on him."

"So a man lost his good name and his life, his wife died, his son's life was wrecked and his daughter impoverished," mused Dallas, "and all that a financier might grow a little richer. I can't believe it!"

A little ashamed of displaying such vehemence in the presence of one of her uncle's dependents, the girl glanced toward the table. But the secretary had gone.

"My husband," prattled Mrs. Bennett complacently, "always said that the men who rose highest in the money world reached their lofty places over the despoiled bodies of hundreds of victims. Thank God, my boy has no such parental record to look back on. My husband was one man in a million—the soul of honor both in business and in private life. You've read of his splendid civil war record. Then he went into business as a contractor and engineer and earned a fortune, every dollar of it in his honest. That's something to be proud of in these money loving times."

"What was the name of the financier who ruined Mr. Garrison?" asked Dallas, still haunted by the narrative she had just heard.

"No one knows. It was suppressed at the time. The facts in the written confession left by Mr. Garrison became public property; but, through political influence, the name of the man responsible for the tragedy was suppressed. Here I sit chatting on doleful topics, while those two young people are running all over the place unchaperoned. Excuse me, won't you, and I'll look them up!"

Campton.

Henry Lindon (col.), of Daysboro, was brought before Esq. S. F. Allen, of this place, Thursday of last week, charged with the murder of Desko Adams. He was released upon an examination of the charge by the court. A large number of Campton's candidates for county offices, as well as a number of their friends, attended the funeral meeting on Gilmore last Sunday. G. W. Sally, of Stillwater, was in town Monday on business. G. B. Stamper, county attorney, attended Esq. Hollon's court, on Holly, last Friday. Prof. E. E. Whiteside has resigned his position as principal of K. W. A. and Prof. G. C. Allen has been appointed in his place. George Center, of Stillwater, and Oia Miller, of Devil's Creek, went to Lexington last week and entered Kentucky State University. Mort Barker, of Rocky Branch, in this county, while in town last Saturday night, was shot through the neck by some one concealed in the shade of Cannoy's livery stable. It is not known who did the shooting, as Barker had no known enemies. It is thought that he will recover, though the wound is a dangerous one. The oil well drilled by Marshal & Spencer, on the Ward Watson farm, proved to be a dry well. This firm will at once begin drilling on the G. W. Lovelace place, on Stillwater, where they already have their derrick completed. Born, to the wife of James Reynolds, on September 5, a boy; to the wife of Rev. J. M. Matthews, September 13, a boy, and to the wife of George Wireman, September 11, a girl.

Our Position.

THE BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS has always been and is now an independent newspaper and as such has always supported the candidates for office that it deemed to be to the best interests of the people to have elected. It has always fought for the rights of the people and against political machines and has seen the people win and the machine smashed.

We believe it to be to the best interests of the people to have the Democratic ticket elected from Bryan to Stamper, and we believe that it is the duty of every citizen who believes that "the people shall rule" to vote that ticket from top to bottom. The News is going to support that ticket and will give its readers from time to time its reasons therefor.

As for the National race we need not give it much concern as the State will go safely Democratic anyway, and as for the Congressional race the people will fare well under either Davis or Langley, but in the races in this judicial district it is very different. The present incumbents are the Republican nominees, who, we believe, have clearly shown their inability to cope with the situation, as very few convictions for crime have been had and very little business done under their administration. On the other hand the Democrats have nominated men of ability and experience, for their offices, who when elected will be able to hold our courts and prosecute our criminals and probably convict some of them.

Let's elect White and Stamper this year and if they don't do better than the present incumbents let the offices go vacant next year.

Remember the Recital.

Remember the recital at the college chapel this (Friday) evening at 7:30 sharp. The program is an interesting one and will repay attendance. Admission free.

Their Game is Known.

The schemes of a few short sighted politicians to traffic for votes in the judicial race, through promises to get pardons for friends and other official favors of a similar kind are well known, but will fail in results. Such use of official position or attempted use, is a low prostitution of office and seems to be openly resorted to at present. It should be closely watched by every honest voter, and so overwhelmingly rebuked in November that it will never be attempted again. Let the voters see to it that such traffic in official position be condemned.

Judge J. B. White.

The office of Circuit Judge is one of the gravest importance to the people. It should be filled by the best lawyer in the district. Next in importance to the security of human life is the protection in the rights of property. All of these questions are by law decided in the circuit courts. The framers of the Constitution, ripe in their experience, wisely foresaw that only lawyers of wide experience were capable of properly filling this position, and to safeguard the people in the trial of their property rights, fixed a minimum age for Circuit Judges at thirty-five years. This was to prevent the elevation to this office of inexperienced judges. As far as it was able by general terms the Constitution has attempted to secure for the citizens judges of wide experience in the law and ripe judgment. To this it added a requisite of eight years practice. It does not mean eight years of holding the license of an attorney. It means what it says—eight years of actual practice of the law.

In Judge J. B. White the Democrats offer a lawyer whose active practice covers a period of years almost equal to the life of his opponent. He has been a success as a lawyer. His reputation as a lawyer is not confined to this district but is co-extensive with the State. It even takes the scope of a national reputation. That reputation is the reputation of a lawyer of brilliant attainments, of indefatigable energy and indomitable courage. Add to this a reputation unquestioned as to personal integrity and you have the Democratic candidate. Should there be a moment's hesitation as to whom you will vote for this fall? Vote for White and you will be voting for your own interests and the best interests of the country.

Ministers Appointed.

The Conference of M. E. Church South, held at Middlesborough made the following appointments for this district: Rev. E. L. Southgate, presiding elder and the following pastors: Jackson, T. R. Cooke; Campton, J. M. Matthews; Hazel Green, W. R. Green; Irvine, J. A. Gossett; Hindman, W. R. Fryman; Clay City, R. M. Bush; Rev. W. W. Green, who has been pastor here for the past two years, was transferred to Hindman in the Frankfort District. He left here Thursday with his family to take charge of the work with the best wishes of his many friends here.

An Expensive Term.

The special session of the circuit court adjourned here yesterday after a session of nearly five weeks. Although it cost the State probably more than any court ever held here, very little business was done. Only two were convicted to the penitentiary, one of whom confessed. Only three civil cases were tried by the jury. The juries were held 22 days, yet some of the jurors did not sit in any case for more than two weeks of the time. The jurors were not in fault, however, because they did not have the opportunity.

It took eight days to dispose of a motion for a change of venue in the Beech Hargis case, at a cost to the State of $301.04 in witness fees alone, when one day would have been sufficient to have recognized them to appear at Irvine. During the same time several other cases were hanging on at a heavy expense to the State. With a continuous session of court in this county at the rate the cases have gone off at this term it looks like our docket would be crowded after a ten days session.

The Unwritten Law.

The examining trial of Ruck Cottongame, who killed Parish Arnett, Jr., was held at Hamilton, O., last week and he was held over to circuit court without bail. The so-called "unwritten" law will be urged in the defense of Cottongame. This announcement was made by lawyer U. F. Bickley after consultation with Cottongame. Cottongame claims that Arnett invaded his home and terrorized him. This defense has never been specifically urged before an Ohio jury, it is said.

NOTICE!

ON and after September 15, 1908, Crawford & Co. store, of Jackson, Ky., will conduct their mercantile business on a strictly spot cash and produce plan only. No doubt some may take exceptions to such a radical change, but our judgment tells us that we can serve a greater number of people to better advantage, and at a less cost, than we can by the credit system. Call and test our new plan. We firmly believe you will be entirely satisfied, and we know to a certainty that we can sell you goods cheaper than any credit concern can or will undertake to do. We are determined from this date on that no expense caused by a credit system shall be a burden upon our customers. A cash system once established can do the honest people more good than any credit concern ever did or ever will. Respectfully yours—

Crawford & Co.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Breathitt Circuit Court.
Thomas H. Deaton's Adm'r.,
vs. Notice of Sale.
Mary E. Stidham, &c., Defts.

By virtue of a judgment of the Breathitt Circuit Court, made and entered in the above styled cause at its May term, 1907, for the sum of $325.47, with interest from the 23d day of September, 1907, until paid, and $30.85 cost herein expended, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Jackson, Breathitt county, Ky., on Monday, Sept. 28, 1908,

between the hours of 12 o'clock m. and 2 o'clock p. m. the following described real property, to-wit:

The undivided one-fifth interest of Thomas H. Deaton, deceased, lying and being in Breathitt county, Ky., on the Middle Fork of the Kentucky river, on the south side thereof, at the mouth of Long's creek, and beginning at said river at the mouth of Long's creek; thence running down said river with its meanders to the lower end of a bottom at a conditional line made between James Johnson and George W. Belcher and Bowling's heirs; thence with said conditional line as marked running up the hill to a beech tree by the road; thence with said conditional line as marked up the hill to the top of the ridge between Deaton's branch and Long's creek; then with the top of the ridge to where the line of the land deeded to James Johnson and William Strong crosses the ridge; then down the hill with said Wm. Strong's line to a black gum near Long's creek; then down the creek with a marked line along the hill to a beech tree near the bank of the creek, a short distance above the end of the field; then to the creek; then down the creek as meanders to the beginning at the mouth of the creek, containing 100 acres more or less.

SECOND TRACT.

A tract of land in Breathitt county, Ky., on the northeast side of the Middle Fork of the Kentucky river and lying on and near Bowling's creek, a tributary of said Middle Fork, and bounded as follows:

Beginning at or near the mouth of Bowling's creek, on the lower side of same; then up said Bowling's creek with its meanders to a large sycamore tree standing on the bank of said creek, opposite a flat rock and linn tree, about 125 yards from the mouth of said creek; then crossing said creek to said flat rock and linn tree; then up the point and with Edward Deaton's heirs line to the top of the ridge; then with the top of the ridge and said line to John Gay's heirs line; then with said line and the top of said ridge to Richard Combs' line; then with said line to a small hickory standing on the top of said ridge at the top of the spur leading down to the mouth of said Gay's heirs branch on the lower side of said branch; then down said spur to the mouth of said branch at Bowling's creek at a beech tree; then up said creek with its meanders to a stooping sycamore tree standing on the right hand of said creek, opposite a cliff then crossing said creek and up the point a straight line to the top of the ridge between Richard Combs' branch and main Bowling's creek, and with said Combs' line running with the top of the dividing ridge between said Bowling's creek and Lick branch; then with the top of said ridge and said Spicer's line around to Jackson Callahan's line to opposite a large rock with three holes in said rock in the edge of said Middle Fork river at Jackson Callahan's upper corner; then with said Callahan's line to said rock in the river; then up said Middle Fork with its meanders to the mouth of said Bowling's creek, the beginning, containing 300 acres, more or less. Only the one fifth interest of the said Thomas H. Deaton will be sold, or enough thereof as will be necessary to satisfy the above named judgment, principal, interest and costs and cost of this sale.

Said property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder on a credit of six months, and the purchaser will be required to give bond for the purchase money with approved security, bearing interest from day of sale, and having the force and effect of a replevin bond, and a lien will be reserved in said bond on all the property sold until all the purchase price, principal, interest and cost is paid. After suffering for seven years, this woman was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Read her letter.

Mrs. Sallie French, of Panama, Ind. Ter., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I had female troubles for seven years - was all run-down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different troubles but did me no good. While in this condition I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am now strong and well."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulcerations, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat your letter in confidence and advise you free. No woman ever regretted writing her, and because of her vast experience she has helped thousands. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Razzie Dazzled.

Sing a song of love time, alone in the air.
Now is mating dove time.
Joy is everywhere—
Apple blossoms are in bloom,
Pink perfume is in the air.
Lilts young branches quaking
In the west wind's rout,
Sing a song of love time,
Just for Maude and me,
Now is turtle-dove time.
Cooling dove is she,
Really do I think so,
But the air of May
Has me on the blink,
